Summary

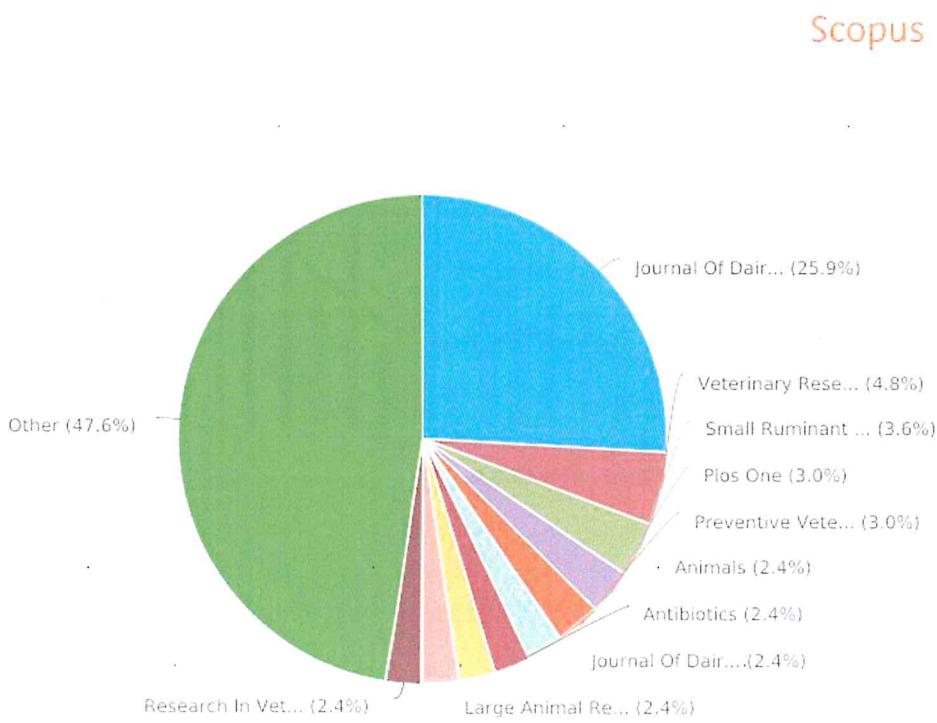

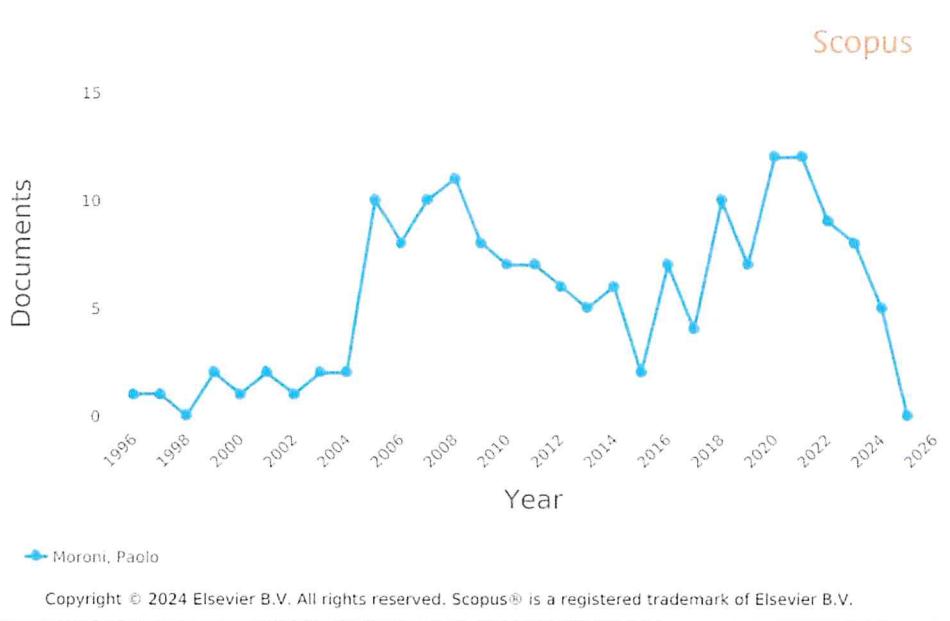

Paolo Moroni obtained his DVM dissertation in 1993 at University of Milano, Italy for his work "Investigation on the mastitis and correlations with intramammary infections and dry therapy". In 1994 he spent 6 months in Institut für Hygiene of Kiel, Germany and in 1998 follow the PhD "Dinamics of some immunitary parameters in sheep milk and correlations with intramammary infections" and in the same year he became research at the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Milan. Diplomate to European College of Bovine Health Management (ECBHM) from 2007.

In 2010 he moved to CORNELL University and he was a Director of QMPS Ithaca until 2013 when he retired. Actually is a Full Professor at University of Milano. He believes that a strong connection between the field and the laboratory practices (bacteriology and molecular testing) are the best opportunity for developing both effective preventative programs and treatments or vaccination schemes for the practitioner and the farmer. He therefore strongly encourage to keep this cooperation active and working in order not to lose track of the real status of dairy cattle farming situation and also increase the relationship with the practitioners
